A Review on RV & Cottage Silvertown

Margaret Sisserson* · Hee Yang · Keun-soo Park

Abstract

In this study, a number of cases and episodes were reviewed, we reviewed basic concepts of RV (recreational vehicle) park and cottage for the elder in pacific islands. Many elderly people face housing problems of one kind or another and have difficulty in obtaining proper information. Silvertown is a wide range of town for senior housing. For a good example, there are a number of cottages for old persons. Senior Cottages are specially designed communities staffed to serve the needs of those with memory loss. The cottages provide a protected, comfortable, therapeutic environment that helps residents maintain dignity and self-esteem as they and their families live with the dementia. Our philosophy of care is built on the concept of preserving the dignity of residents, their family and friends, and staff. We create a sense of well-being, in a supervised environment, life agendas in later life, housing is the key to comprehensive overall problems. For example, health and psychological problems aggravate if there is no suitable shelters in later life. In Particular, when we consider a framework of elderly welfare policy, providing a proper type of residential choice is the first step to offer a basic caregiving environment, a variety of choices for alternative housing for the seniors.

Key words: Cottage, group home, senior cottage

* Director, T & T Partnership, Republic of Palau
 Doctoral Candidate, Dept. of Elderly Welfare, Han-Seo University
 Professor, Dept. of Social Welfare, Joong-Bu University, Korea
I. Introducing Basic Concepts

In this study, we reviewed basic concepts of RV (recreational vehicle) park and cottage for the elderly in pacific islands. Many elderly people face housing problems of one kind or another and have difficulty in obtaining proper information. Silvertown is a wide range of town for senior housing. For a good example, there are a number of cottages for old persons. Senior Cottages are specially designed communities staffed to serve the needs of those with memory loss. The cottages provide a protected, comfortable, therapeutic environment that helps residents maintain dignity and self-esteem as they and their families live with the dementia. Our philosophy of care is built on the concept of preserving the dignity of residents, their family and friends, and staff. We create a sense of well-being, in a supervised environment, that lets people feel at home.

There is an empirical episode. Prairie Senior Cottages develops, owns, and operates assisted living communities for those with memory loss in greater Minnesota. We are widely recognized for our training curriculum who care for people with memory loss. We insure that each staff member acquires the knowledge to be successful in providing individualized attention and quality care. Sheltered Housing is accommodation that is specifically provided for older people. For instances in the United States, the minimum age to be eligible for Sheltered Housing is 60 in general.

However, younger people may be eligible if there are specific medical reasons why they may need the accommodation. When we care for various issues of life agendas in later life, housing is the key to comprehensive overall problems. For example, health and psychological problems aggravate if there is no suitable shelters in later life. In Particular, when we consider a framework of elderly welfare policy, providing a proper type of residential choice is the first step to offer a basic caregiving environment. Even those older persons with adequate